It has been my pleasure to have known Ed Churchman for the last 15 yrs. In that time i have dealt mainly with Ed on a professional level. He has been the architect on numerous projects I have bid as well as built. His plans have always been neat and professional. And his attention for details & specifications make it easily to transfer to the field. He was always available for questions and would come to the site for inspections and just to see how things were progressing. He would also help in location of materials hard to get and would listen to suggested changes, as long as it didn't affect the structural integrity of the building. Ed also understands what it takes to build at altitude of 8,000 ft., which in our area is extremely important. If you are considering Ed Churchman for your next project, it is my opinion it would be a choice well made.
